Butler	Mount Rest Cemetery-San Kiang Charitable Association section.		Kakeout Road			New Listing as of 2011.		This section contains approximately 100 stones inscribed in Mandarin "Long" form calligraphy that was discouraged during the Cultural Revolution of China; "Long" form requires additional stroke-marks to form a letter. It is common practice in China to list the deceased's home province and village name on the stone. Further, any name that is written in red indicates the person is alive; black letters indicate deceased. Chinese burial rites include funerary money burned for use in the after-life by the deceased. Accordingly, this cemetery displays funerary money on top of the stones. The stones themselves display images evocative of the Far East: bamboo, pagodas and one stone "guarded" by two, small Asian-stylized lion statues. It would appear that the stones are laser-cut granite with set patterns; a pagoda image on both a Sung and a Tao stone is identical at first glance, only characters are different. Information regarding burial rites, translations of the stones and explanation of the "Long" form was provided by Mr. Ray Chang, Morris County Preservation Trust.

Page 9	No	Vandalized/repared by 1974. In 1976, many stones had been repaired with metal straps, cement, etc. In 1986, the Acroterian team had no associative history, but noted the repairs. By 2011, Jan Williams of Preservation Trust observed a plaque attached, giving the name "Patrey Family Cemetery", and reads as follows: "I give and bequeath to my family and neighbors who have heretofore used the ground for burial of their dead, the burying ground now on my farm for a burying ground forever and to be used for that purpose only. Containing about one fourth of an acre." From the will of: John Patrey Aug. 14, 1781- April 28, 1858. There are many deteriorated stones, failed repair attempts are evident, but the cemetery appeared well- cared for, a split-rail fence encloses it. There are possibly graves unmarked, as there is a large void in the cemetery between the tombstone of Jane Eliza Patrey, and the other burials.

Chester Township	Pleasant Hill Cemetery a.k.a. Hill Top Cemetery of Flanders, Chester Presbyterian Churchyard	1740	10 Pleasant Hill Road	No	1407-034	Page 9	No	Established 1856, consisted of approximately 20 acres in 1976 and 1986. Per Superintendent William Weinberg, the following items should be noted in a re-survey: (A) in 1989 the cemetery increased to almost 100 acres. Mr. Louis J. Kennedy sold the additional acres to the cemetery shortly before he died. (B) In 1989, the Pleasant Hill Association also purchased Flanders Methodist Church Cemetery on Hillside Avenue. (C) The new administrative office to the rear of the property was built in 1999, a gift from Mrs. Bernice Smith. Her specifications included running water and indoor toilet facilities. (D) Rock with plaque indicates the presumed location of the original church buildings (no remains) and the tree behind it indicates the supposed location of the church's altar.

No	No	Page 11		In 1755, William Penn's sons of began to sell off their father's land in Union Hill (Denville.) At the time, Denville was part of Hanover Township. Aaron Carter established a farm along Den Brook sometime after 1755. The 117 acre Carter Farm the earliest known reference for the farm is in a 1793 deed. Aaron Carter and family moved to Newark, New Jersey around 1800. Some interesting side notes: Aaron Carter served in the American Revolution, and his son, Caleb was an amateur artist. An 1803 painting by Caleb of Mt. Vernon (General George Washington's Virginia home) is part of The Newark Museum's collection. The Hill family acquired the Carter farm ca, 1809. Although It is unclear when the first internment took place, there has been speculation that the cemetery contains unmarked graves that pre-date the oldest marked grave (Alice Hill, May 18, 1836) possibly serving as a Carter family cemetery, as well.
