HISTORICAL SUMMARY: Lincoln Park is one of several municipalities that have roots in the original Pequannock Township. The area that is today Lincoln Park is largely located on drained land, and came to be known as the village of Beaver Town; it was also known as Two Bridges. The settlement was called "Beavertown" or "Beaver Town" due to the large number of beavers found around what was then known as Beaver Dam Brook, which wound through the Bog and Vly Meadows before continuing eastward to the Pompton River. The few early settlers, some of them Dutch, relied on the land for sustenance, and supported themselves with small-scale farming, charcoal making, and gathering peat in the bogs.

Early development focused along major roadways connecting Lincoln Park to other areas of Morris County, particularly the Newark Pompton Turnpike and the Paterson-Hamburg Turnpike. The Morris Canal, completed in 1831, played a large role in the development of Beaver Town, as did the opening of a branch of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. A village center developed in the vicinity of these structures; Beavertown had a station on the line by 1872. The name was formally changed to Lincoln Park in 1872 in honor of President Abraham Lincoln. Although suburbanization can be said to have taken root in Lincoln Park in the late 19th century, much of the development of Lincoln Park is the result of land subdivisions and construction of neighborhoods in the twentieth century; the post World War II period is particularly well represented. Some seasonal and permanent dwellings were built between the wars, particularly in the southeastern and central areas of town, respectively. The Borough of Lincoln Park was formally incorporated in 1922.

ADDITIONAL FACTS:

• In 2001, Lincoln Park was deemed the "Third Kindest Town in New Jersey" during a state campaign to raise courtesy awareness.
